

half of the people who responded to the survey had been inspired by the project to change their habits or lifestyle to reduce fossil fuel use. In Addition, more than half have been inspired to invest in energy-saving items. Air travel remains a difficult behavior to change but even here we are seeing some progress.

We recognize that changing our personal consumption is only the first step. We continue to work towards changing legislative policies through our meeting's commitment to support FCL and FCNL. We know that it is essential to change the cultural, economic and political structures in our society that reinforce over-consumption. We believe that in order to make those deep changes as a society, we must personally make those changes in our own lives. This is not where our work ends, but where it begins.

We have also been traveling to other

Quaker meetings in northern California to learn how they are working on environmental issues and showing them what we have been doing. These visits are being made in collaboration with PYM's Unity with Nature Committee. Why not give us a call?
